Harlow's No.1 newspaper delivered to more than 36,000 homes every week

PLANS to build homes on the for- By CHRIS MOSS, News Editor mer swimming pool site in First Avenue have been have approved by councillors.

Developer Croudace Homes will start work soon on the construction of 65 one, two, three and four bedroom flats and houses – 21 of which will be "affordable" – after Harlow Council's planning committee gave the scheme the green light,

Some 20 public parking spaces will also be provided on-site for people using the Town Park, with the developer pledging to fund the provision of an chris.moss@hertsessexnews.co.uk

Pedestrians and cyclists will be able to access the park via a tree-lined avenue cutting through the develop-

Croudace managing director Russell Denness said this week the scheme would provide the town with much-needed housing.

will be an exciting development on a high-profile site on one of Harlow's main thoroughfares," he said. "This is the culmination of a great deal of hard work by the design team at Croudace, council officers, members and representatives of the Harlow Civic Society and the Town Park Users Group.

He added: "We look forward to starting work on site shortly and the first homes going on the market early next

The development is the final piece of the jigsaw in the £50m Harlow Gateway Project, which has already delivered the state-of-the-art Leisurezone sports complex and more than 100 new homes on the former Sportcentre site in Fifth Avenue.

The plans for the swimming pool site originally met with criticism when it emerged that a covenant supposedly protecting the site for public use "in perpetuity" had apparently been scrapped to facilitate its sale to a private firm.

At first Harlow Civic Society, the organisation set up to preserve and protect the town's heritage, opposed the plans, but this week vice-chairman John Curry said it was now "broadly in favour" of the development.

"Obviously we are not very happy that a covenant put on the land to preserve it for public use was effectively ignored, but broadly speaking we are reasonably pleased with the proposals reasonably pleased with the proposals Croudace has put forward," he said. "They have engaged with us through-out the planning process and we feel they have listened to our concerns and criticisms over the design, build quality and scale of the development.

"It is by no means perfect but we now hope to see some real high-quality, welldetailed housing built on a site which holds great importance as a key gateway to the Town Park."

Dancing success gives Lucy a taste for salsa

A BEAUTICIAN who took up salsa classes just 16 months ago has won a national amateur dance competition.

Lucy Starling (28), of Jocelyns, Old Harlow, said she was amazed when she and partner George Antonis came first in the Open British Salsa Amateur Championships at Bolton Arena – not least because it was the first time either of them had ever taken part in a competitive event! "When we entered the competition I never expected to win," she said. "I just thought it would be good practise.

"Although George and I trained really hard and had a good dance routine, the standards at the competition were much higher than we'd expected so we were worried.

"When they announced that we had won I was so shocked but also over the moon. It was the most amazing

Lucy is now looking to find a permanent partner for future competitions and has started training as a salsa teacher.

This was such a massive achievement for me and only makes me want to salsa more," she said. "I am just hooked!"

Consortium buys shopping centre

By CHRIS MOSS, News Editor chris.moss@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE Harvey Centre has started the financial year on a secure footing after being snapped up by new investors.

The future of the shopping mall looked bleak after former owners Sapphire Retail Fund went into administration last August.

It left some traders fearing the worst and dealt a major blow to Harlow Council's ambitious town centre regeneration plans.

But the centre regeneration plans.

But the centre – which also incorporates retail units in West Gate, East Gate, Little Walk, East Walk, West Walk and parts of Broad Walk – can now look forward to new investment following its purchase by a fund made up of real estate investment firms. Tristan Capital, AEW Europe and Addington

A spokesman for the consortium, which has also taken over the lease on shopping malls in Burnley and Cardiff as part of a £145m deal for Sapphire's former retail portfolio, told the Star the new owners were determined to attract new retailers to the complex. "We believe that there are plenty of opportunities to improve the look and feel of the centre, as well as the retail mix," he said.

"With strong management and capital investment we're sure that the Harvey Centre can begin to realise its potential and attract even more retailers and shoppers to Harlow."

He added it was too early to give a "concrete" figure on the amount of money the new owners planned to pump into the mall.

The centre's purchase from administrators
Grant Thornton has been welcomed by Harlow Council.

Assistant chief executive Cath Shaw said the deal proved Harlow remained a viable proposition for investors despite the tough economic climate.

"It was great to see so much interest in the Harvey Centre as it shows that Harlow remains an attractive place for investors," she said. "We look forward to future investment in

Pets' Corner horse hurt in dog attack

A HORSE at Pets' Corner had to have 14 stitches after it was savaged by a dog that had been let off its lead in Harlow Town Park.

Star, pictured above, a seven-year-old black Cob horse, suffered a four-inch gash to its muzzle when it was attacked by the dog – described as a Staffordshire Bull Terrier-type breed on Saturday afternoon.

It happened on the same day a dog being walked by its owner in another part of town was also attacked by a terrier which had been let off its lead (see page 7).

The horse, one of six at Pets' Corner, had been grazing in a nearby field when it was attacked. The dog then ran amok in the council-run facility, chasing a turkey before being collected by its owners.

Lynn Seward, the council's head of community and customer services, said: "This incident was all the more upsetting because it is so rare. Pets' Corner is a really safe environment for children.

"Luckily Star is on the mend but the message to park users has got to be if you are taking your dog out, keep it on a lead near Pets' Corner."

Police have confirmed they are investigating the incident.

Hands off green wedges

SIR, Back in the 1960s Harlow Development Corporation transferred areas of land to Harlow Council to form the Town Park. Each transfer included a legal covenant that specified the land should remain as public open space in perpetuity. Somehow, and without public consultation, the council has apparently found a way around these legal

So this month several acres of the Town Park have gone for commercial development. The 160-place car park has also been lost, to be replaced by only 55 places at different sites. Hardly encouragement to visit the park!

The continuing loss of land from our green wedges is of serious concern to those of us who want to support and retain the principles of Sir Frederick Gibberd's masterplan for our

The current localism bill in the House of Commons promises to give more powers to local communities in planning matters and ensure more transparency and less secret deals.

If Harlow Council supports Government policy, perhaps it will either stop developments or at least tell us - the citizens and council tax payers - which are the next green spaces for sale or development.

Provide a list now and we can all vote upon it next month! That is local democracy!

No community spirit

SIR, Would you let me tell the people of Harlow that the civic amenity dump has apparently moved to Milwards. We take all rubbish; just open your gate and throw it out on the grass and verges.

I feel sorry for the council workers who come and clean here. They are wasting their time. Also, we have discos. If you want to listen to music, why does the whole estate have to hear

Snub to civic society

SIR, Harlow Civic Society has, until recently, held periodic meetings with the leader and chief executive of Harlow Council to discuss issues of common concern which are of importance to the town.

Our last meeting should have taken place on December 23 but was cancelled by the council because of heavy snow. Over the course of the past three months we have tried repeatedly to elicit another date for a meeting but completely in vain.

In the current issue of the Conservative newsletter In Touch, there is an item headed "Big Society alive and well in Harlow" in which the idea of people coming together to

'Mixed-up' domestic waste is separated and then recycled

SIR, In response to your correspondent who asked how mixed-up waste is separated (Letters, April 7), I can assure her that the recyclable domestic waste that is put in bins does not go to landfill. The materials are taken to a materials recovery facility at Rainham where they are all separated and recycled.

The success of the council's kerbside collection scheme, for which we thank the residents of Harlow, has meant that the 'bring bank' sites have become largely redundant and that has contributed towards the decision to withdraw them.

Your corresponent observed a lorry collecting waste from offices and putting it all into the same refuse lorry. The collection of waste from commercial premises is completely separate from the domestic waste collection service the council provides to the 36,000 properties business and the collection contractor they have chosen to employ to collect their waste.

Veolia do provide commercial waste collections in Harlow, but this is a separate arm of the company to the one that carries out the waste collections for the council.

Graeme Bloomer Head of Regulation, Harlow Council

solve problems is vigorously proclaimed. The treatment meted out to Harlow Civic Society hardly accords with this. Is it not grossly discourteous and heedless of democratic responsibility to ignore our approaches in this way?

We are now wondering if we are being ignored for objecting to the idea of building 1,200 dwellings north of Gilden Way.

John Curry, vice chairman Harlow Civic Society Old Orchard, Harlow

Repair potholes first

SIR, It is nice to see the new foot/cycle way along the road from Bush Fair to the old Latton Bush School but how much did it cost? Surely this money would have been better spent on filling in the many potholes around

And whoever designed the new junction at the top of Tillwicks Road has killed the flow of traffic through that part of the town.

Before the change you could get two cars leading on to the roundabout. Now they have reduced the width of the road to single file, causing traffic to build up.

Brian Hood Brockles Mead, Harlow

Endless list of services

SIR, Unlike Frank Jackson I have not been a life-long member of any political party (Letters, March 24). Neither have I, in my 79 years on this earth, firmly closed my mind to any other opinion but my own.

"Neo-Liberal economic orthodoxy". What on earth is that? "Capitalist rat race". It sounds just like my late father-in-law who, as a miner in Wales during the 1930s, might well have had good reason to use the phrase. But even he grew out of it before he died.

Can such drivel really be the reason Gordon Brown made a gigantic hash of our finances? Is it not the duty of government to regulate

Mr Jackson airily concedes that the last Labour Government made the odd mistake. Unfortunately it was the same mistake as every previous Labour government made without the aid of the neo-Liberal economic orthodoxy claptrap that forced Brown to spend money we didn't have.

Yes, we must have services but they have to be paid for and they have to be needed. But many of those put in place by Labour – like Elf 'n' Safety and the acceptance of Yooman Rites a la Europe have spawned an army of jobsworths whose sole task is to keep us under firm government control.

Like the spurious community police officers who have no powers and no responsibility. Like policing by camera and the removal of burglary as a crime. Like the massive army of lawyers allowed to multiply as the dictates of Brussels add even more rules to be used to protect the rights of murderers and rapists and ignore their victims and their relatives.

Like the masses of obscure and fatuous rules and the more than 3,500 new laws put in place by Labour that were designed to control our every action And like the incredibly stupid and feckless action of the last Labour chancellor to sign us up to support such countries as Greece, Ireland and now Portugal which also saw no wrong in spending money they didn't have.

The list of 'new services' is endless and the result of them is the financial chaos left behind. But things look very unlikely to improve too much in a hurry now that we have a coalition of Europe-lovers.

David Cameron is hell-bent on following in Tony Blair's footsteps in strutting the world stage. His obdurate refusal to honour the promises to allow us to make our own decision on the question of membership of what has become a club for lining the pockets of hasbeen politicians will no doubt prove to be his eventual downfall.

Is the answer to the problems we are left with really to be solved by more of the same, which is all that Mr Jackson seems to have to offer? Does anyone other than the brainwashed seriously believe the Messrs Miliband and Balls have the solution to the problem they had a very big hand in creating?

Me? I would stop pumping money into Europe, stop borrowing money to give away, stop pretending that we are still a world power and send the thugs from Europe who corrupt young people back to the fill the jails in their own countries. With them would go the illegal immigrants and the preachers of hate and death

Beyond that I would sack all the jobsworths who enforce petty rules and those who appoint them, and use the massive savings to pay off debt and set about giving the elderly and those who really need help a decent standard of

And I would reduce taxes and abolish many controls put in place for the sake of those who rob people of the initiative to make a better life for themselves.

Simplistic . . . or just plain common sense?

Mike Audritt Hobbs Cross Road, Harlow

Collective amnesia

SIR, Amnesia in people who commit serious crimes has long been debated by criminologists and forensic psychiatrists

Claims of memory loss may stem from disease, dissociative amnesia, psychotic amnesia or malingered amnesia. It may even be associated with multiple personality disorder, where sufferers don't know who they really are.

Dissociative amnesia may result in detachment, which interferes with remembering traumatic events, or compartmentalization, characterised by the failure to control normal brain functions or actions and the inability to recall normally accessible information.

Studies of these phenomena suggest that fear or trauma may bring about an altered state of consciousness involving a disconnection from one's sense of self (depersonalisation) or the real world (derealisation).

It may, therefore, be that use of the term deficit deniers' is unfair to those of the Labour Party who appear unable to remember their part in handing Britain the largest deficit of all G20 nations and cannot bring themselves to even acknowledge this exists, so much so that they want to repeat this offending behaviour by urging us to spend even more Perhaps they are suffering collective amnesia!

Council steps up its safety patrols after 'despicable' crime

By CHRIS MOSS, News Editor chris.moss@hertsessexnews.co.uk

COMMUNITY ranger and dog patrols are being stepped up around the area where intruders barged their way into the home of a 98-year-old woman and stole cash and jewellery.

As reported in last week's Star, the two men pushed their frail victim to the floor before ransacking her bungalow in search of valuables

They stole a small amount of money and a gold ring which was of great sentimental value to the woman as it belonged to her mother.

Police have yet to arrest anyone in connection with the sickening incident, but this week Harlow Council announced plans to increase the fre-

Runners ready for the start of marathon slog

By VICKY LANE

vicky.lane@hertsessexnews.co.uk

AFTER months of training and hundreds of miles clocked up on pedometers, runners from across Harlow are ready to take part in Sunday's London Marathon.

Best friends Lucy Burke (26) and Rebecca Gagg (26) decided to sign up for the event after watching a friend compete in the Dublin Marathon.

Lucy, of Brooklane Field, said: "I just really got an urge to help raise some money for charity after watching my friend, so Rebecca and I started applying for marathon places and were thrilled to be accepted as a team for Children with Leukemia.

"I'm definitely nervous about the race and don't think either of us had a clue how tough it was going to be. I am just hoping to actually finish without breaking anything!" Rebecca, of Fullers Mead, added:

Rebecca, of Fullers Mead, added: "It's been really hard work and taken a lot of dedication. I haven't had a drink for almost six months!

"Now that the day is almost here I am nervous but also excited. And I'm really looking forward to that celebration beverage after!"

The girls, who are running as part of the charity's Mr Men and Little Miss team, hope to raise £3,000 for the charity. To sponsor them, visit http://uk.virginmoneygiving.com/team/Beckieandlucy

It is the second time the father-of-two has taken part in the marathon. He is hoping to beat his previous time in 2004 by completing the course in under four hours.

"I don't think I took the training seriously enough last time and really struggled through the second half of the marathon," he said. "However, seven years on I think I am much more prepared and just eager to get on with it now.

He added: "Whizz-Kidz is a really great charity which relies on most of its funding from the London Marathon. They help to give disabled children back some independence

Trial of OAP dropped on medical grounds

A PENSIONER accused of sexually touching two young girls has walked free from court after prosecutors offered no evidence against him.

Chelmsford Crown Court was told on Friday the Crown Prosecution Service had decided not to proceed with the case against Lawrence Bonello (76), of Spinning Wheel Mead, Harlow, after he was found to be unfit to stand trial because of psychiatric prob-

As a result Mr Bonello, who was accused of kissing the two girls last November, did not have to face a hearing to establish whether the alleged incidents occurred.

Judge Charles Gratwicke agreed it would not have served the public interest to bring the two alleged victims to court given Mr Bonello's age and "particular circumstances". He told Mr Bonello: "You're free to go.

You'll be given an explanation how you should behave in future."

Earlier, the court was given reports which had been prepared by a psychologist and a psychiatrist, as well as forensic psychiatrist.

Prosecutor Matthew Gowen said the CPS did not dispute the defendant's condition and would not proceed with a trial but asked for time to decide whether to hold a trial of issue at which a jury would determine whether the acts had taken place.

However, after reviewing its position the CPS decided not to proceed with the case.

Primary school weighing up advantages of Academy move

A PRIMARY school in Old Harlow has joined the growing number of schools considering applying for Academy status. Fawbert and Barnard's, in London Road, is the first primary in the area to consider breaking away from the control of Essex County Council as local education authority control in favour of being run independently.

According to a school spokesperson, the proposals, are at their "earliest stage" Passmores, Burnt Mill, Mark Hall, Stewards and Leventhorpe schools – all secondaries – are currently exploring a move to Academy status as a result of increasing financial pressures.

Fawbert & Barnard School declined to comment further on its plans when approached by the Star this week but Murray Sackwild, secretary of the Harlow and Epping Forest branch of the National Union of teachers, said it was opposed to state schools opting out of the control of the local education authority.

"We believe that state schools should remain within the local authority education service, serving the children and parents in the local community as part of that local community and accountable to that local community," he said.

"We do not believe that schools should be run as private businesses where, ultimately, the pay and conditions of teachers and teaching assistants can be freely trampled over."

Crash biker on the wrong side of road

A MOTORCYCLIST was travelling on the wrong side of the road when he crashed head-on into a taxi coming in the opposite direction, an inquest heard this week.

Garage owner Steve Martin (29), of Greygoose Park, Harlow, was also estimated to have been travelling at speeds of between 88mph and 101mph when his bike collided with the hackney carriage on the A1060 near Chelmsford on June 29 last year.

Mr Martin was thrown over the handle-bars of his Suzuki GSXR1000. He died from a broken neck and bleeding from multiple London cabbie Jason Braithwaite (40) told the inquest at Chelmsford Crown Court that he saw Mr Martin approaching him on his side of the road.

"I just braced myself on the steering wheel and it seemed like no time at all – he was literally in front of me," he said.

Mr Braithwaite, from Sawbridgeworth, was driving back towards Bishop's Stortford and had already been passed by two motor-

Mr Braithwaite attempted to brake and went on to the verge, fracturing his wrist in the crash.

Witness Colin Hugget, of Bambers Green, Takeley, was driving behind the taxi. In a statement read to the court he said he and Mr Braithwaite were travelling at around 40-50mph at the time of the acci-

"I saw the bike flying through the air together with the rider. I had to steer round the cab," said Mr Hugget, who stopped and dialled 999.

Forensic collision investigator PC Alan

Barlow said there had been a group of four bikers travelling towards Chelmsford, two ahead of Mr Martin, one with him and one behind. He said it was possible Mr Martin was overtaking another motorcycle as he began to negotiate the left hand bend.

From tyre marks on the road surface, PC Barlow estimated that Mr Martin was travelling at between 88mph and 101mph when he gan emergency braking, swerving to his right in a bid to avoid the taxi.

"The two vehicles collided head-on," said the officer. "The taxi driver could have done nothing more to avoid the collision in the space and time available."

PC Barlow added that if Mr Martin had been travelling at 60mph when he began braking he might have been able to stop.

The inquest was told there were no traces of alcohol or drugs in his blood.

Recording a verdict of accidental death, coroner Caroline Beasley-Murray expressed the court's sympathies to Mr Martin's partner, parents and brother.

Creating new college garden is a team effort

THE official opening of a garden created by green-fingered students at Harlow College has been marked with a planting ceremony.

The PACT Garden - named after local autism support group Parents of Autistic Children Together who donated all of the plants for the project - was designed by the college's foundation students and brought to life by building maintenance apprentices.

In one of the raised beds the students have used flowers to spell out PACT.

Construction lecturer Stuart Reid said: "This has been a fabulous project for the apprentices. They have used teamwork and problem-solving skills as well as traditional construction skills to create this garden."

Guest of honour at the opening ceremony was Harlow MP Robert Halfon, who said: "This garden is a very special place, one of outstanding beauty.

"It will give students, lecturers and visitors a chance to stand and stare a little, to reflect as they rush to and from classes."

The garden was constructed by the apprentices in just six weeks with the support of PACT and builders merchants Ridgeons, which donated the building materials and garden furniture.

Pond pair find a stolen wallet

vickv.lane@hertsessexnews.co.uk

T could have been a story from an Enid Blyton novel when 10-year-old Ben Brooks was pushed into a pond by two bullies.

For Ben ended up with more than a soaking when he and his friend, Diane Moreland, found a stolen wallet in the watery depths.

The incident happened back in 1983 when Ben was aged 10 and Diane was 11, and was reported in the Harlow Gazette. Ben told the paper's reporter the youths who pushed him in the pond were the same ones who had, two months earlier, tried to steal his fishing net. Ben's mum Marlene sent Nostalgia a copy of the newspaper report of the children's lucky find which turned out to belong to a local woman whose handbag had been stolen in the Harvey Centre.

The wallet contained a sodden £10 note, a driving licence and a kidney donor card. Ben and Diane immediately rushed back home to tell their parents and call the donor card's owner, earning themselves a £1 reward for its return.

"They were very happy with themselves," said Marlene, of Little Parndon.

"Ben and Diane were really close then and together all the time. They were always going off on explorations in the woods and bringing stuff back so I think they were really pleased to finally find something of value."

But the adventurous duo didn't finish their investigations there. At the crack of dawn the following day they returned to the crime scene to see what else they could find.

They ended up retrieving an opal box that the handbag's owner had also reported as missing – although they were unable to find any trace of the bag.

However Ben, who is now 38 and lives in Northbrooks, wasn't the only explorer in the family.

"After the second find, Ben's eightyear-old brother Hardy was starting to get jealous of all the attention his sibling was getting so he decided to sneak out to see if he could find anything himself," revealed Marlene.

Hardy returned home jubilant and proudly showed his discovery to his mother

"Unfortunately all he found was an old bus ticket and an empty watchcase," said Marlene. "He had been hoping to get a reward too!"

POW's victory

Former Japanese prisoners of war have won their fight to put up a plaque in Harlow Town Park in memory of their comrades. Deputy chief constable to cross county border

THE current deputy chief constable of Essex will be swapping counties when he takes over as Hertfordshire's top cop.

Andy Bliss. pictured below, will replace Frank Whiteley as chief constable of the Herts Constabulary. Mr Whiteley retires at the end of the month.

Herts Police Authority chairman Stuart Nagler said: "Andy's wide-ranging experience and knowledge of operational policing, together with his personal strengths and leadership qualities, will enable him to meet the significant challenges that lie ahead for policing in the county."

Mr Bliss (50) started his police career in Sussex in 1982.

In 2004 he was appointed assistant chief constable of Essex Police, initially with responsibility for personnel and training and then for territorial policing, including the implementation of neighbourhood policing.

He became temporary deputy chief constable in 2006 and took the role on permanently the following year.

He is vice-chairman of the Association of Chief Police Officers drugs committee and was awarded the Queen's Police Medal in the 2010 New Year Honours.

"I am really delighted to be joining Hertfordshire Constabulary as chief

"My aim is to keep it that way and to build on the fine legacy that Frank Whiteley leaves. Reducing crime, catching criminals and keeping people safe will be our top priorities." Mr Bliss will be working with the police authority as well as the collaborative policing partners in the Bedfordshire and Cambridgeshire forces.

Married with one son, he enjoys classical music, skiing, cycling and archaeology.

Jealousy drove woman to send texts to herse

A WOMAN sent herself 10 threatening text messages which resulted in a man being arrested and held in custody for more than 13 hours, a court heard.

Pauline Chapman (43), of Netteswell Orchard, Harlow, had regretted breaking up with her partner - Stephen Harvey - and sent the messages in a bid to win him back by making them "closBy COURT REPORTER star@hertsessexnews.co.uk er", Chelmsford Crown Court was told.

However, her actions resulted in the former husband of Mr Harvey's new partner being arrested.

Peter Gair, prosecuting, said Chapman had complained to police in February of this year that she had received a number of text messages which had caused her to be frightened for her safety and that of her family.

She also claimed further messages had caused her to fear she was being stalked.

"Police used the messages to take a statement from her former partner, Stephen Harvey, who himself had received text messages giving him cause for con-cern," said Mr Gair.

As a result police arrested

Bruce Lockhart, former husband of Mr Harvey's new partner.

Mr Gair said: "However, it was a false complaint. She [Chapman] had not received text messages from anyone but herself, although she had not wanted Mr Lockhart arrested.

"She had sent the texts as a result of her jealousy of the new relationship of her former part-

Mr Gair said Chapman had also sent 20 further texts to Mr also sent 20 Intriner texts to Mr Harvey and his and his new partner. He added that she had given herself up to police and was of previous good character. Chapman, who pleaded guilty to charges of committing acts tending and intending to pervert the course of justice, was given an 18-month community order with supervision.

Passing sentence, Charles Gratwicke said he was taking a compassionate view because Chapman had explained herself to police.

Business survey to help town's economy

BUSINESSES in Harlow are being urged to fill out a survey which could help to secure new investment in the town.

The West Essex Employer and Business Survey - which is being conducted by Harlow Council on behalf of itself and Epping Forest and Uttlesford councils – asks questions ranging from recruitment issues to what improvements could be made to the town to benefit business.

Harlow Council's assistant chief executive for growth and regeneration, Cath Shaw, said: "We

Dotty the donkey saves Stan

SECRET MESSAGE Jrog qa lae poyy o grhuu-yuttuq qabxul? O Jabxul

the sheep from jaws

of death

A DONKEY that came to the rescue of a sheep which was being attacked by a vicious dog has been given a special award for bravery.

Dotty pinned the dog to the ground so that the sheep, called Stanley, could get away to safety. Last week Dotty's owner, Ann Rogers, was presented with a certificate awarded by animal charity PDSA at the paddock Dotty and Stanley share in North Yorkshire.

Vets said that if Dotty hadn't intervened, Stanley who lost two teeth and suffered a facial wound in the attack - could have been very seriously injured or even killed.

The grateful sheep hasn't left Dotty's side since the attack and the pair even sleep in the same stable at night.

Dotty is the 10th animal to get the PDSA award since it was first handed out in 2001. The other nine have all been dogs.

Owner Ann (63), who rescued Dotty after finding her tied up by the side of the road three years ago, told reporters: "She was so brave that day. 'She saw her friend Stanley in distress and charged down the field to rescue him from the dog's jaws.

Beauty & The Beast New World Productions Harlow Playhouse

A TALE as old as time it may be, but its slender storyline sadly stopped this beast from truly roaring.

New World Productions has enjoyed great success at The Playhouse, most recently with the theatre's Christmas panto Aladdin, and the ingredients were certainly there to carry on with this winning run.

Fantastic costumes, an enthusiastic cast and a great live band gave the show real momentum, but Beauty & The Beast's big, inescapable problem is that it doesn't have enough of a story to keep you enthralled. As such, the temptation was there to pad it out. Some padding is perfectly fine – after all, this was a panto-style show where such things are to be expected. But at times it felt like the hilarious Tom Swift's Jaques and hugely talented impressionist Andy Fleming's Baron Bourbon were delivering laughs so often there was room for little

This reliance on comedy certainly appeared to be a winner with the audience though. They lapped up the many routines, one in particular where Baron Bourbon disguises himself as Elvis to give Fleming the opportunity to deliver a spot-on impersonation of The King.

As for the star casting, EastEnders' Melissa

JONATHAN ANSELL

Suffield did a solid enough job as Belle while Jonathan Ansell (from X-Factor success story G4) was maybe a little too pitiful as the Beast, although his performances of Just The Way You Are and Queen's Somebody to Love were fantastic and got the biggest cheers of the night. Elsewhere, Peter Brad-Leigh's energetic Captain Peugeot was a dame by any other name and the talented team of local dancers distracted you from the odd-looking set which didn't do the show justice. Although far from beastly, there should be just enough beauty in this manic musical to keep the boys and girls happy this Easter.

Ballet with pumpkins and pirouettes

FALL under the spell of enchanting fairytale ballet Cinderella at The Playhouse next week when Harlow Ballet Association returns to the theatre in a flurry of pumpkins and pirouettes. Featuring a cast of talented local dancers, HBA's Easter production follows the timeless tale of a bullied young girl rescued from domestic misery by her Fairy Godmother.

Whisked off to the magical Kingdom of Stars, she is transformed from country wench to belle of the ball, slipping on her sparkling crystal shoes and stealing the heart of the Prince – only to lose everything as the clock strikes midnight and the spell is broken. The anguished Prince then

The anguished Prince then searches high and low for his lost love, the only clue to her identity a glass slipper lost on the palace steps as she scurried home from the ball.

HBA artistic director Michael Branwell said: "It seemed apposite to choose Cinderella as our Easter production with the marriage of an ordinary girl to her prince charming just around the corner.

"There will be dazzling sets, magnificent costumes and the beautiful music of waltz king Johann Strauss. It will be a wonderfully traditional ballet that will be enjoyed by both aficionados and the uninitiated alike."

The production opens on Thursday, April 21 and runs until Easter Sunday (April 24). Performances begin at 7.30pm (2.30pm Sat/Sun matinees) and tickets cost £12 (£8 children).

Fairy tale reworked for the Twilight generation

RED RIDING HOOD certificate 12A 1h39m

THE Twilight films have a great deal to answer for, whetting an appetite for fantastical adventure stories with tortured young heroes and heroines.

Now director Catherine Hardwicke, who brought the first Twilight film to the screen, slavishly follows the same template in her reworking of the classic fairy tale.

Thus we have a beautiful heroine torn between two potential suitors, sweeping aerial shots of lush forests and a rock soundtrack to underscore the lingering glances and angst of the protagonists.

If Red Riding Hood didn't pander to its 12A certificate there would be potential for a bloody horror story. Yet, every time Hardwicke's film threatens to veer into dark, unsettling territory, it's sweetened with a drizzle of sickly sweet romance and heartfelt outpourings.

Valerie (Amanda Seyfried) lives with her father Cesaire (Billy Burké), mother Suzette (Virginia Madsen) and older sister in a village plagued by a werewolf. Every full moon the locals tether a pig to a stake as a sacrifice and lock their doors.

Away from the bloodshed, Valerie is in love with best friend Peter (Shiloh Fernandez) but must marry Henry Lazar (Max Irons), whose family fortune provides the best chance of a rosy future.

When the werewolf claims the life of Valerie's sister under a blood red moon, renowned hunter Father Solomon (Gary Oldman) vows to unmask the beast in their Red Riding Hood uses the familiar story as a hook for a predictable menage a trois. Employing logic, the identity of the werewolf is evident before the big reveal, when Valerie must mature from damsel in distress to architect of her own fate.

The story's iconic exchange "Grandmother, what big eyes you have" – is consigned to a nightmare sequence, eliciting unintentional giggles as we await grandmother's payoff lines.

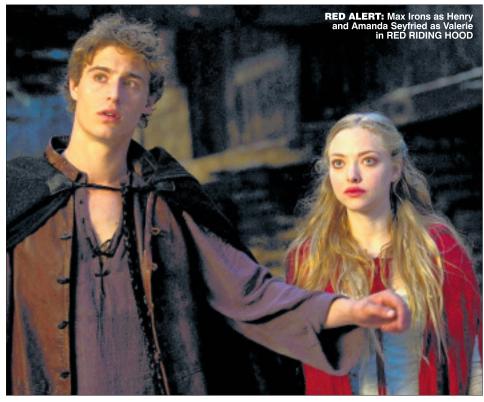

Rosy-lipped Seyfried provides a nice visual contrast to her two tall, dark and handsome suitors and Oldman merrily chews scenery as the zealous werewolf hunter.

The cast look good in close-up and even manage to keep straight faces as they deliver some terrible dialogue. But the audience may find it harder not to snort with derision into their popcorn.

AA Milne's rotund bear, immortalised in the illustrations of E.H. Shepard, celebrates his 85th anniversary this year yet our affection for Winnie The Pooh hasn't diminished with time. The narrator (John Cleese) welcomes us to the wood where Pooh (voiced by Jim Cummings) is rudely woken from his bed in order to look for Eeyore's missing tail. Tracey Waples Property Editor

LIKE life, our property ownership often goes through stages.

Although years ago it was more the norm for people to buy a home and live in it for the rest of their lives, today there is far more property mobility

Rarely are we in a position to buy a large house that will accommodate a growing family when we take the first step onto the property ladder and more often than not we will trade up.

In an ideal world we work, we earn enough to buy a place of our own, we size up to keep in line with the family and then, hopefully, we get to the point where we're living somewhere that suits us just perfectly.

Although many people see property as simply a way to make money (and look at the hot water that has landed many in), for most of us our house is

There is a great deal written about first time buyers but the older generation of property owners have some serious decisions to make, too. As we get older it's quite often the case that the house or garden may become too much to may become too much to handle. There can seem little point rattling around in a home with seven bedrooms when there are just two of you and the children rarely come home

Although we might not want to think about getting older and downsizing, sometimes it's an issue that is best tackled sooner rather than later. And although it may seem a daunting prospect can actually be quite invigorating.

Granted, the family home can hold a great deal of memories, but our belongings can evoke those memories and once you have moved and settled into your new place it's amazing what a difference having a few of your familiar items around you can have. you can have.

Moving out of the long-term family home doesn't have to be as difficult as you might think. Make sure you have the support you need and embrace the new challenge.

Be Cautious..!

Last week I mentioned the "Which!" magazine article, did any of you see it?

One of the good points they mentioned, and criticised, was agents view on valuations?

They rightly pointed out that many agents seem to have no idea what some houses are really worth or they grossly over value to win instructions. They should provide you with details of comparable sales in the area to justify their valuation.

Please be careful. The market is improving but remember the rumours are of possibly two or three interest rate increases this year which means mortgages will be more expensive and buyers should be careful about how much they are willing to pay.

Beware of over valuing, please don't be influ-enced by generous claims of what your home may be worth. Make sure your chosen agent presents you with the facts or you could end up being very disappointed!

I would love some feed back - please ring 01279 401902 with your thoughts.

MG6: the return of the marque

By Matt Joy

HERE'S little room for sentimentality in the motoring business. Your average car buyer may get all misty-eyed when recalling their first four-wheeled ticket to freedom, but snap back to reality and there are few people willing to spend their hard-earned cash on a nostalgia trip.

It is this harsh reality that faces the MG6, the first offering from the rejuvenated MG Motor Company that is back selling new cars in the UK.

The previous few years have seen the development of the business and its facilities alongside limited production of the MG TF. But now it is back with a brand-new product and a production line in the UK, albeit for completion in Birmingham rather than starting from scratch.

The MG6 is a mid-sized hatch that sits between the traditional C and D segments – think Ford Focus and Mondeo. It is handily priced near the former but with space approaching the latter.

It's certainly an attractive car on first meeting. There's very little in the way of harking back to the past: this is a modern exterior design and stands up well to rivals that have the benefit of vast FACT file

MG6 1.8 TCI-Tech TSE PRICE £18,995

Engine: 1.8-litre petrol unit producing 158bhp
Transmission: Five-speed manual driving the front wheels
Performance: Top speed 120mph (limited) / 0-62mph in 8.4 secs
Economy: 35.6mpg
Emissions: 184g/km

resources.

Look closely and you can see the barrel-sided effect last seen on the Rover 75 which helps the strong stance. And although it is less pretty from the rear, MG have done a fine job of creating a modern interpretation of the brand. Climb inside and there is an immediate feeling of space. With a crucial extra few centimetres over the standard C-segment template, the MG6 offers a little bit more. although this is somewhat tempered by the choice of dark colours for the cabin finishes. The dashboard layout is broadly conventional with clear instruments and a centre stack carrying all the major controls. Premium-seeking customers may be a little disappointed: the MG6's cabin plastics are a little mixed and a shade behind Korean rivals although the actually build quality appears very sound. Equipment levels are certainly above standard, however, with the top-spec TSE models getting satellite navigation, climate control, Bluetooth and a reversing camera as standard. Even the entry-level S model is well kitted-out, giving the MG6 a large dose of showroom appeal.

At launch the engine range is limited to a 1.8-litre turbocharged petrol unit producing 158bhp, and while some will be searching in vain for a diesel option from the start the petrol does have a lot going for it.

Regardless of model, the 1.8litre unit is matched to a fivespeed manual gearbox driving the front wheels and in keeping with the sporting edge to the MG brand it gives the MG6 a strong turn of speed. With a 0-62mph sprint time of 8.4 seconds, it is comfortably rapid if not hot-hatch quick, but on a suitable stretch of road it has more than enough power to make the journey interesting.

Driven in a more sedate fashion, it is respectably refined but when stretched to deliver maximum performance noise levels do increase.

That will be of little relevance, however, when the first bend looms in the windscreen because the MG6 is certainly worthy of its well-known badge thanks to the responsive and able steering and suspension.

Initially the steering is surprisingly heavy, but after a few miles it becomes clear this is merely a reflection of the accuracy and consistency it offers. Even when driving in town or in traffic, wellweighted controls are less taxing for the driver. And when the conditions are just right, the MG6 is thrives on challenging bends and demanding conditions. Stack the MG's overall performance against its rivals and the results are something of a mixed bag. On paper the top speed and acceleration are par for the course: by limiting the MG6 to 120mph its insurance grouping is significantly lower, contributing to the impressive overall figure of 14E.

Fuel consumption is a fraction below average while the emissions are a relatively high 184g/km, although both of these will be significantly improved with the diesel engine to follow.

More important, however, is the fact that the MG6 is spacious, fun to drive and wellspecified.

With prices starting at £15,495 for the impressive S model, it stands fair comparison with other high-value brands that can't offer such a good driving experience.

For that reason alone, the MG6 is worthy of careful consideration.

Together, NEU Mutual, one of the UK's leading general insurance and financial services companies, and the National Farmers' Union, the UK's largest farming organisation, are looking for a talented individual to represent them.

But what makes this opportunity so different? For one, there are two sides to your role. Firstly, you'll head up the Bishop's Stortford Agency based in Takeley, managing a team of sales, administrative and support staff. And with help from our field support network including Training Consultants, Sales Consultants and the local Area Manager, you'll serve the insurance and financial needs of local members. We'll look to you to drive and develop new business, promoting and selling our awardwinning insurance and financial products. The second part of the role will see you act as the local NFU Group Secretary, championing British farming in your region.

Ambitious, commercially-minded and brilliant at building profitable working relationships, you'll already have experience of developing a team. Understandably, you'll need proven sales experience, not necessarily within insurance or finance. A degree or equivalent (e.g. ACII qualification) is desirable. And sharing our passion for rural affairs, you'll enjoy being part of the fabric of local life. In return, we offer a competitive benefits package and ongoing professional development.

With half-time approaching, Tony Hall and Tom Jelliman opened up the FEL defence before a cross by Sam Crichton found Nino Calvino, whose cheeky back heel found the net to give Maypole a two-goal lead at the interval.

FEL started the second half strongly and Ben Johnson had an effort cleared off the Maypole line by John Ansell while at the other end, Maypole saw Jelliman's free kick hit the FEL bar.

But it was not long before Maypole extended their lead. On 58 minutes a Jelliman cross was flicked in by Dreamer.

Simon Atkinson notched up eight points through good work and a good period ensured the Hawks went into the last quarter leading 55-49.

Harlow's big men – Simon and Luke Atkinson – then took control and were responsible for Hawks'11-4 run which effectively ended Luton's chances.

Afterwards, Moss said: "There was great effort, unity and team work. Everyone contributed on the offensive and defensive end and we are starting to show some good form as the play-offs approach."

Wheeler: Play-offs our first objective

Harlow Town 1, Tilbury 0 Ryman League division one north

CHRISTIAN Wheeler said the Hawks must improve if they are to make sure of a play-off spot.

Harlow Town are fifth in the league and five points ahead of sixth placed AFC Sudbury.

This was after Wingate and Finchley overtook the Hawks when they beat Needham Market 2-1 at home on Tuesday to go fourth.

Wingate have played one game more than Harlow and are two points ahead of the latter.

Harlow had no midweek game after gaining an unconvincing 1-0 win over Tilbury on Saturday which extended their long unbeaten run. Hawks' assistant boss said: "We need an improved performance. We created quite a few chances in the first half against Tilbury but the second half we did not play to the standards we have set.

"With no disrespect to Tilbury we could have lost against a better side. We cannot take our eye off the ball."

Harlow face Heybridge Swifts at home this Saturday and aside from striker Che Stadhart (knee injury) have no injury worries.

Wheeler added: "We know they have a couple of decent strikers but we have to focus on what we need to.

"If we keep winning, the pressure goes onto the other sides below us. The

In the game against Tilbury Dave Cowley came close after seven minutes before he set up the only goal on 15 minutes. His cross from the left resulted in Steve Ferguson shooting home at the second attempt.

Bertie Brayley also came close just before the break, but Harlow were not as fluent in the second half and became more disjointed.

Home keeper James Hasell was forced to make two good saves including one from former Hawks winger Ben Bradbury in the 70th minute. Hasell needed some treatment to his head as he was dazed after he blocked the shot Harlow came closest to scoring again on 75 minutes when a great ball found Brayley whose 20-yard shot rattled the crossbar.

Rams pay the price for poor first half

Old Streetonians 33, Harlow 17 London & SE Division 2 NE

THE Rams have a chance to end a dreadful season on a positive note when they play their last game at Saffron Walden this Saturday.

Already relegated and with just two wins under their belt, Harlow were condemned to defeat at relegation-threatened Old Streetonians on Saturday after a bad first galf.

The visitors allowed Streetonians to score two early converted tries, mainly through uncommitted tackling. Both were converted and Harlow trailed

Streetonians increased their lead midway through the first half when they broke to score a try which

Harlow then showed signs of improvement and scored their first try on the half hour mark. A good handling move ended with skipper Scott Romaine taking the last pass to touch down near the corner. However, Streetonians rallied and scored two further tries. One was converted and the hosts led 33-5 at half-time.

In the second half Harlow showed much more commitment, moving the ball wide frequently. They scored their second try on 50 minutes. A good attacking move saw Will Grimley on the end of a scoring pass and he ran in for a safe touch down near the corner. The conversion was missed. Despite crossing the Streetonians' line on two more occasions they were unable to ground the Shortly before the end, Hawks number eight Darren Hawkins broke well and was stopped before passing to the supporting Mark Barr who touched down under the posts. Chris Bates kicked the conversion.

Afterwards, Rams' director of rugby Lee Harron said: "We were really poor in the first 25 minutes and did not win anything.

"We did better in the second half and it was encouraging that things went well which we have done well in training."
